

OUTLINE OF TOPICS

	PAGE
1. The difference between government by law and government by men: the nature of constitutional government	242
2. The notion of a constitution	243
2a. The constitution as the form or organization of a political community: arrangement of offices; division of functions
2b. The constitution as the fundamental law: its relation to other laws, as a source or measure of legality or justice
3. The relation of constitutional government to other forms of government
3a. The combination of constitutional with absolute government: the mixed regime; constitutional or limited monarchy
3b. The merits of constitutional government compared with royal government and the mixed regime	244
4. The constitutional conception of political office: the qualifications and duties of public officials
5. The diversity of constitutions among the forms of government	245
5a. The justice of different constitutions: the extent and character of citizenship under each
5b. The mixed constitution: its advantages
6. The origin of constitutions: the lawgiver, the social contract, the constituent assembly	246
7. The preservation of constitutions: factors tending toward their dissolution
7a. The relative stability of different types of constitutions	247
7b. The safeguards of constitutional government: bills of rights; separation of powers; impeachment
8. The change of constitutions
8a. Methods of changing a constitution: revolution, amendment
8b. The violation and overthrow of constitutional government	248
9. The theory of representation
9a. The functions and duties of representatives: their relation to their constituent!
9b. Types of representation: diverse methods of selecting representatives	249
10. The origin, growth, and vicissitudes of constitutional government	