

DESIRE

OUTLINE OF TOPICS

	PAGE
1. Desire and the order of change: eros and telos	331
2. The analysis of desire or appetite	332
2A. The roots of desire in need, privation, or potency: the instinctual sources of the libido
2b. The objects of desire: the good and the pleasant
2c. Desire as a cause of action: motivation or purpose; voluntariness	333
2d. The satisfaction of desire: possession and enjoyment	334
3. The modes of desire or appetite
3a. Natural appetite: desires determined by nature or instinct
3b. Desires determined by knowledge or judgment	335
(1) The distinction between sensitive and rational desire: emotional tendencies and acts of the will
(2) Conscious and unconscious desires: habitual desire	336
3c. Desire and love: their distinction and connection
3d/. Desire and aversion as emotional opposites	337
4. The economy of desire in human life
4a. The conflict of desires with one another
4b. The attachment of desires: fixations, projections, identifications, transferences
4c. The focusing of desires: emotional complexes	338
4d. The discharge of desires: catharsis and sublimation
5. Desire as ruler
5a. Desire ruling imagination: daydreaming and fantasy
5b. Desire ruling thought: rationalization and wishful thinking
5c. Desire ruling action: the unchecked expression of desires; incontinence	339
6. Desire as subject to rule	340
6a. The regulation of desire by reason: the discipline of moral virtue or duty
6b. The restraint or renunciation of desire: abstention, inhibition, repression	341
6c. The results of repression: dreaming, symbolic over-reactions, neuroses
7. Desire and infinity
7a. The infinite tendency of desires
(1) The pursuit of pleasure	342
(2) The lust for power
(3) The accumulation of wealth
7b. The restless search for the infinite: the desire for the vision of God	343