

OUTLINE OF TOPICS

1. The general theory of good and evil	613
1a. The idea of the good: the notion of finality
1b. Goodness in proportion to being: the grades of perfection and the goodness of order
1c. The good, the true, and the beautiful
1d. The origin, nature, and existence of evil
2. The goodness or perfection of God: the plenitude of the divine being	618
2a. God's goodness as diffusive, causing the goodness of things: God's love	619
2b. The divine goodness and the problem of evil
3. The moral theory of the good: the distinction between the moral and the metaphysical good	620
3a. Human nature and the determination of the good for man: the real and the apparent good; particular goods and the good in general	621
3b. Goodness in the order of freedom and will	622
(1) The prescriptions of duty
(2) The good will: its conditions and consequences	623
3c. The good and desire: goodness causing movements of desire and desire causing estimations of goodness
3d. Pleasure as the good, a good, or feeling good	624
3e. Right and wrong: the social incidence of the good; doing or suffering good and evil
3f. The sources of evil in human life	625
4. Divisions of the human good	626
4a. Sensible and intelligible goods
4b. Useful and enjoyable goods: good for an end and good in itself
4c. Goods of the body and goods of the soul	627
4d. Intrinsic and external goods: intrinsic worth and extrinsic value
4e. Individual and common goods	628
5. The order of human goods
5a. The supreme good or summum bonum : its existence and nature
5b. The judgment of diverse types of good: their subordination to one another	629
5c. The dialectic of means and ends: mere means and ultimate ends	630
5d. The supremacy of the individual or the common good: the relation of the good of the individual person to the good of other persons and to the good of the state	631
6. Knowledge and the good	632
6a. Knowledge, wisdom, and virtue: the relation of being good and knowing what is good
6b. The need for experience of evil	633
6c. The goodness of knowledge or wisdom: the use of knowledge
6d. The possibility of moral knowledge: the subjectivity or conventionality of judgments of good and evil	634