

OUTLINE OF TOPICS

	PAGE
1. The nature of revolution	635
1a. The issue concerning violent and peaceful means for accomplishing social, political, or economic change
1b. The definition of treason or sedition: the revolutionist as a treasonable conspirator	636
1c. Revolution and counter-revolution: civil strife distinguished from war between states
2. The nature of political revolutions
2a. Change in the form of government or constitution
2b. Change in the persons holding power: deposition, assassination, usurpation	637
2c. Change in the extent of the state or empire: dissolution, secession, liberation, federation	638
3. The process of political revolution
3a. The aims of political revolution: the seizure of power; the attainment of liberty, justice, equality
3b. Ways of retaining power and combatting revolution	639
3c. The causes and effects of revolution under different forms of government
(1) Revolution in monarchies
(2) Revolutions in republics: aristocracies, oligarchies, and democracies	640
(3) Rebellion against tyranny and despotism
4. The nature of economic revolutions	641
4a. Change in the condition of the oppressed or exploited: the emancipation of slaves, serfs, proletariat
4b. Change in the economic order: modification or overthrow of a system of production and distribution
5. The strategy of economic revolution
5a. Revolution as an expression of the class struggle: rich and poor, nobles and commons, owners and workers	642
5b. The organization of a revolutionary class: the bourgeoisie and the proletariat as revolutionary classes in relation to different economic systems
5c. The classless society as the goal of economic revolution: the transformation of the state
6. The justice of revolution
6a. The right of rebellion: the circumstances justifying civil disobedience or violent insurrection
6b. The right to abrogate the social contract or to secede from a federation	643
7. Empire and revolution: the justification of colonial rebellion and the defense of imperialism	